

Jill Miller

Biography

Jill joined the CIPD in 2008. As a research adviser, her role is a combination of rigorous research, active engagement with academics and practitioners to inform projects and shape thinking, and active dissemination of research findings and thought leadership. Jill's work looks at the impact of demographic and societal trends affecting work, the workforce and workplace. She frequently presents on key people management issues, lead discussions and workshops, and is invited to write for trade press as well as offer comment to national journalists, on radio and TV.