

Sue Cohen

Biography

Sue is on the management team of the Productive Margins Programme based in the Law School at the University of Bristol, a five year Connected Communities initiative developing co-produced research with marginalised communities in Bristol and South Wales on the theme of regulation. From 1990 – 2013 she was CEO of the Single Parent Action Network, responsible for SPAN's overall strategic development at a national and European level including, policy development and managing major partnerships working on anti-poverty, anti-discrimination and gender equality strategies. She is a Management Committee member of the Women's Budget Group, a national independent body advising on economic, employment and welfare policies and on the economic sub-committee of the Women's Commission in Bristol.